SPECIAL SOTIONS.

YEARLY WESTING—FRIENDS ARE NOW FLOCK-ing in to the yearly meetings. To them, if not much ac-curtomed to visiting the city, if may be necessary to say that Knox, 128 Fulton street, knocks everybody else into the mid-dle of next week, in the way of getting up Hats, of any style required. As for the citizens of New York generally, they would take it as an insult to their understanding if we thought it necessary to praise Knox's hats to them.

A CARD FOR THE HERALD—JAMES GORDON BENnett, Egg.—A stadement relative to an assault made reterday upon me, having appeared in an extra of one of the daily papers, I respectfully request, through your journal, to state a few facts connected with the matter. The statement in the extra Star is, in its main essentials, true; but does not give some details, which I wish to go before the public, now that a pertion of the history of the matter is before them. I was easied out of my room by Mr. Samuel C.
Bwaris and Samuel Conkey, both strangers to me, yesterday recriming. I was saked if I knew Mr. Clark and his daughter, and, while ruplying, was struck, withhout any premonitien, a violent blow by the fist of Swarts, which knocked me down.
I was immediately jumped upon and beaten by Swartz, Conkey standing by. I resisted to the best of my ability; but, from the unexpected nature of the assault, and the effect of the first blow my resistance was rendered comparatively ineffectual. The assault was without provocation, and without justification, and I will only say, in conclusion, tazs I deeply regret that the name of a young lady, whose modesty of deportment and purity of character are beyond exspicion, should be dragged before the public by the rash action of Mr. Swartz. The wholematter is in the hands of my professional advisors. Western, Cown and Spencer, and I chall cheerfully abide the design of a jury of my fellow clinars upon it.

Jenny Lind's Jewelry Store.—J. Wikstrom, a countryman, it appears, of the Swedish Nightingale, has located himself in the Pontable Buildings, and immediately contiguous to the interesidence of the famed Jenny. He has baptised his store Jenny Lind's Jewelry Store; and having the prestice of her great name to hallow his onward course, he can hardly fail of success. Mis musical Watches, if he has any, must be, from the fact of position, better vocalists than any other time tickers in the Union. Then his Jenny Lind Jewelry is fascinating, and his Jenny Lind Watches superb. It will be seen from his advertisement that the sweet singer of Sweden has taken an interest in his affairs. If so, he cannot fail having a share of her luck.
